Political Challenges & Political Changes

Discover world economics, policy making, and political relationships with a degree in Political Science from Black Hills State University. The political arena is ever-changing. Congressional power shifts keep law makers and history writers busy. For a career that is fast-paced and challenging; has great employment opportunities; and can be your catalyst into the political scene, the BHSU Political Science degree is a great choice for you.

Prepare For Your Future

As a Political Science student at BHSU, you'll study world events from a variety of perspectives and strive to unravel the history and development of political systems. You will examine different types of political organizations from various eras in history through classes in Governments of the World, State and Local Government, International Political Economy, and Political Philosophy. You'll learn to identify political practices and to explore new proposals and ideas. In the process, you will develop good written and verbal communication skills which are crucial for the clear and accurate articulation of issues and views.

Learn From The Best

You will learn from dedicated, politically-involved professors who keep pace with the dynamic world of politics. The political science faculty members have been honored with national teaching awards, and continue to promote political science education on a national level through the "We the People" program. The BHSU professors also publish scholarly essays and books, staying abreast of current political issues.

Enjoy The Experience

By joining the BHSU Political Science Association you will meet regularly to participate in political discussions and debates. The Pre-Law Association is open to people from any major interested in law school, political science majors often have a strong interest in the organization. As a member you will prepare for law school admission and for the law school experience. As a political science major, you may also be interested in interning with the South Dakota State Legislature, the Governor's Office and the U.S. Representative and Senate offices. Black Hills State is your ticket into the political arena.
