General Manager of Stott Outdoor Advertising

Dedicated BHSU supporters
Jim and Laura Moravec ensure students will receive a quality education.

Greetings BHSU Alumni,

The only constant is change. BHSU continues to change to meet the needs of today's students while honoring our legacy and remembering the people through the years that have made Black Hills State a unique and memorable place where students are encouraged to dream and consider possibilities for their future.

I invite you to return to your alma mater. On campus you'll see some very evident changes (the addition of Crow Peak Hall, landscaping, removal of Pangburn Hall and the first stage of an ambitious tree planting plan). I also invite you to take a few minutes to read the success stories of your fellow alumni and learn more about recent University initiatives including our transition to NCAA Division II athletics and the addition of two sports – women's triathlon and women's soccer.

BHSU continues to celebrate its exemplary synergy with the residents of Spearfish and the entire Black Hills region. Our students and faculty have the opportunity to conduct research 4,850 feet underground at the Sanford Lab (former Homestake Mine) in nearby Lead. Our newest location, BHSU-Rapid City, offers educational opportunities in the state's second largest city. You'll also see Jacket Zone retail gift and apparel stores located throughout the state including our newest location in Sioux Falls which is creating some buzz East River.

You, the BHSU alumni, have played a major role in the continuing evolution of the University. Students and prospective students seek your guidance. I hope to see you soon either on campus, in one of our Jacket Zone stores, or at our upcoming alumni reunions. Make plans now to join us for commencement, the Jacket Ride during the Sturgis Rally or Swarm Days 2016. You are always welcome here on the BHSU campus.

BLACK HILLS STATE HOSTS UNDERGRADUATE WOMEN IN PHYSICS CONFERENCE

More than 80 undergraduate physics majors from throughout the Midwest descended on campus at BHSU in January for the American Physical Society's Conference for Undergraduate Women in Physics (CUWiP). The conference was held in partnership with Sanford Underground Research Facility.

Kristin Rath, a secondary science education and physical science major from Canton who served as the student chair of the conference's local organizing committee, said the conference was especially important for undergraduate women in science. Nationally, women are under-represented in the field of physics.

"While undergraduate women in science may be one of only two or three girls in their class at school, they are one of many women in science across the nation," said Rath. "This conference helped them to see that they are not alone in their love of science."

The three-day conference included research talks by faculty, panel discussions about graduate school and careers in physics, presentations and discussions about women in physics, laboratory tours, and a student poster session.

Physics students showcase their research at the American Physical Society's Conference for Undergraduate Women in Physics in January. Held in conjunction with the Sanford Lab in Lead, more than 80 undergraduate physics students were able to network with fellow physics students and educators.

BHSU UNDERGOES CAMPUS IMPROVEMENT PROJECTS TO MEET THE NEEDS OF STUDENTS

As the spring 2016 semester began at BHSU, several campus construction projects to meet the needs of students were nearly complete or underway.

Projects included the removal of Pangburn Hall, hillside bank stabilization, and the addition of an Einstein Bros Bagels coffee shop in the E.Y. Berry Library-Learning Center.

Pangburn Hall, a former residence hall, had significant infrastructure problems that made it cost-prohibitive to remodel. Originally built in the early 50s, Pangburn Hall served a number of purposes through the years (dining area, residence hall, classrooms, small theatre and photography studio) but was physically and structurally unfit for continued use.

Several historic items from Pangburn Hall, including a fireplace grate, were removed and will be displayed at the Joy (Proctor) Krautschun Alumni/Foundation Welcome Center. Furthering BHSU's commitment to environmental sustainability, University facilities staff removed a wide variety of recyclable and reusable materials that will be salvaged and repurposed.

The Black Box Theatre has been relocated to third floor of Woodburn Hall directly above the Theatre Department space on second floor.

When the Pangburn project is complete, a hillside stabilization and landscaping project, which is designed to provide greater access to the University and connect the upper and lower parts of campus, will begin.

Other projects on campus included:

- The Admissions Welcome Center was added in the Student Union.
- Crow Peak Hall, the first new residence hall in 50 years, opened for students this fall.
- The Sanford Science Education Center in Jonas Hall opened last semester. The Center offers science labs, interactive classrooms and displays for visitors to campus.

BHSU HONORS CENTER RENAMED BELLMAN HONORS CENTER

The Honors Center at BHSU is now officially known as the Stewart and Wanda Bellman Honors Center. In October, a group of BHSU faculty, staff, students and BHSU alumni honored Dr. Wanda Bellman, BHSU professor emerita and her late husband Stewart, for the tremendous impact the longtime professors had on the campus and community.

The Center has a true Bellman influence thanks to the artwork, literature and furniture that the Bellmans donated for the Center.

Both Wanda and Stewart Bellman began teaching at Black Hills State College in 1966. Wanda Bellman primarily was a speech and theater orientation teacher; Stewart Bellman taught English.

BHSU RECEIVES NEARLY $1.5 MILLION GRANT FOR STUDENT SERVICES PROGRAM

A highly successful program at BHSU, which more than doubles the graduation rate of qualifying students, earned a grant for nearly $1.5 million from the U.S. Department of Education.

The competitive five-year grant for the Federal TRIO Student Support Services (SSS) Program allows for continuation of BHSU outreach and student services to first-generation college students, low-income individuals, and those with disabilities. The funds provide support for services including academic advising and tutoring to help students successfully graduate from college.

BHSU has offered the TRIO SSS Program since the first grant was awarded in 1971 positively impacting academic and professional careers of several thousand students.

BHSU ALUM SAVES LIVES, EDUCATES OTHERS THROUGH NPS CAREER

Each day, Danny Fairchild, '13, puts his life at risk to help others.

Danny's passion in service is one he cultivated during his years at BHSU, earning his teaching degree.

Now Danny works for the National Park Service, where he most recently completed duties as a Wildland Firefighter and Helitack Crew Member in Sequoia and Kings Canyon National Parks in California.

Danny talks about his career, education at BHSU and love for the outdoors.

Q: Tell me about your job as a Wildland Firefighter and Helitack Crew Member.

A: "Helitack" mainly means Helicopter Attack. We complete operations in remote areas that are 500- to 14,500-foot operations in 40 to 110 degree temperatures.

We do several missions through wildland fire, search and rescue, re-supply orders and drug interaction. Through wildland fire we have a crew of eight men and women, with five of us flying on board, dropped in the vicinity of the fire.

Q: What do you enjoy most about your career?

A: I've been in fire for six years and search and rescue for four years. I started at the park service when I was 19 years old and have truly loved it. I'm a teacher, adrenaline junkie, outdoorsman, competitive individual, and truly like to help someone who needs it.

Q: What's the job like? I'd imagine it's quite a rush.

A: Honestly, it's a rush all the time! I find myself running a million miles a minute. The NPS is one of the best in the business when it comes to rescues. We train daily - physically and mentally - and when a situation comes up we all thoughtfully and methodically go through the process.

Q: Have you had any big saves through your job? Close calls? Memorable moments?

A: My first wildland fire I'll never forget! I felt like I was in war! Just madness, just crazy! And now I'm addicted to it!

I remember a few medical calls that I'll never forget. I remember my hands pressed firmly against a patient's neck, who was bleeding profusely. The patient couldn't speak English, but when I looked into her eyes, all I could see was fear. I remember just looking into their eyes and saying "It's ok, it's ok. I'm here, it's ok." I'll never forget the sheer terror, fear, helplessness in her eyes.

Q: At BHSU, Anything is Possible. What is your Anything?

A: My life pretty much fits that motto to the T. I was unsure of what to do so I just did what I liked. I found out I liked history, teaching, and helping people so I became a history teacher. But instead of teaching in a classroom, I teach in the outdoors. I'm teaching new rookie firefighters fire line safety and tactics and I'm teaching students fire prevention. The park service is filled with history and all the parks I've worked at have a strong history that will be there for generations to come.

Carrie Lewis always had a creative side. She took that passion for creativity and education from BHSU to build a career in marketing.

Carrie comes from a line of BHSU graduates. Her mother attended BHSU and her grandfather taught at the University. So Carrie said it was only fitting she would earn her business administration-marketing degree from BHSU.

While at BHSU, she was part of the Buzz Marketing team which gave her immediate experience with the professional marketing industry.

"That's where I first learned the marketing business in Spearfish," Carrie said. "I graduated under the wings of Dr. Priscilla Romkema and Dr. Wei Song. They guided my path."

After earning her degree, Carrie worked with a local radio station as a marketing account executive. She now works for Pandora and was the only female sales staff member at the time of her hire. She attended Pandora University, where she learned about the core of Pandora and the company's vision.

"I love that I am able to provide clients advertising platforms locally in South Dakota, but also on a national level with Pandora," Carrie said. "Marketing is my passion and I am thrilled to learn where Pandora is headed."

Through her work, Carrie works with clients on advertising campaigns from audio to visual displays.

Carrie encourages others to pursue their dreams and she shares advice she received upon working with Pandora.

"Pursue a career that is always growing and always training; pursue what you love. Find those niches and you will find yourself successful," Carrie said. "You'll find yourself successful if you're always growing."

Black Hills State University alums and father/son, Donovan Sprague and Rylan Sprague, recently published their book Standing Rock: Lakota, Dakota, Nakota Nation.

Standing Rock: Lakota, Dakota, Nakota Nation is a contemporary book that showcases the most recent history of the Standing Rock Reservation through photographs. The oldest photos in the book date from the 1930s.

The Standing Rock Reservation is home to 8,250 Lakota, Dakota and Nakota people of the Oceti Sakowin Nation, located in south central North Dakota and north central South Dakota. The reservation is the sixth largest in the United States.

"As members of the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe, we are familiar with the great people and achievements from all of our Lakota/Dakota/Nakota tiospaye (family)," Rylan said. "Some of the more significant events, like last year's visit from President Obama, led us to focus on this effort on Standing Rock."

"It's so rewarding," Donovan said. "The history and the pride and the interest in the people we work with is tremendous."

Donovin and Rylan have collaborated on musical projects over the years, however this is their first book project together.

Donovin Sprague is a 1982 BHSU graduate and American Indian Studies adjunct instructor. He also is a tour guide, musician, artisan and historian. Rylan Sprague is a 2012 BHSU graduate and a Northern Hills District Botanist for the Black Hills Forest Service in Spearfish.

SECOND GRADE TEACHER, BELLE FOURCHE SCHOOL DISTRICT

Shelly (Brink) Mikkelson encourages her students to set goals for learning, advice she also follows herself. Recently named the South Dakota Education Association's 2016 Teacher of Excellence, Shelly will travel internationally next summer visiting schools with other top teachers from around the nation.

Shelly grew up in a country school in South Dakota where she and her peers participated in cooperative learning and peer teaching. That experience motivated Shelly to become a teacher, a passion that continues to inspire over a decade of work in the second-grade classroom.

"Second grade is a year where students are absorbing everything you're teaching them. It's a big year," said Shelly, who has taught 20 total years in the Belle Fourche School District.

While at BHSU, Shelly said Dr. Dean Myers, then director of field experience and dean of education, was like a "second dad to me."

"Dr. Myers was a great listener and was always ready to share his words of wisdom with me," said Shelly.

Shelly follows Dr. Myers' example and has mentored BHSU education students every year of her teaching career. Each semester, students visit her classroom to observe and ask questions about best practices. Shelly says helping students gain confidence and become independent thinkers continues to be a gratifying part of her profession.

"When you see the lightbulb come on for your students, when they start thinking for themselves, and making smart decisions, that's when it's so rewarding to be their teacher," said Shelly.

MARKETING COORDINATOR, CITY OF MONTROSE
OFFICE OF BUSINESS & TOURISM

Kelly Rhoderick knows the equation for success. Energy, plus great teachers at BHSU, combined with the tools to succeed have certainly paid off for Kelly.

Kelly served as assistant editor of the BHSU school newspaper and tutored fellow students while obtaining her degree. She credits BHSU with nurturing her work ethic.

"I had professors that put in the hours and one-on-one time to make my visions come to fruition. I love saying that I went to a small school that isn't necessarily a design school and that I got out of it what I put into it," said Kelly.

As a marketing strategist with more than 15 years of experience, Kelly has worked both for firms and as a creative consultant across the fields of technology, construction, and medicine. Kelly has used her skills in the community serving as a board member for the Montrose Wine and Food Festival, a weeklong event that has raised thousands of dollars for local children's charities.

In her day job, she creates messaging strategies to garner business and tourism for the City of Montrose, Colo. But for Kelly, the end to the success equation is still in the numbers.

"I enjoy watching the analytics return with what is working and what isn't," said Kelly. "I love digging into the numbers to see what makes people engage most."

RACE TO SUCCESS: BHSU ALUM BUILDS MARKETING CAREER, GIVES BACK TO STUDENTS

When Jim Moravec was a student at Black Hills State University, he became determined to accomplish great things. And he did. He says his accomplishments all have roots at BHSU where he learned success is the result of hard work, determination and encouragement.

Jim has accomplished much success in his life as an entrepreneur, athlete and dedicated supporter of BHSU.

A Wyoming native, Jim earned his physical education degree from BHSU in 1979. A first-generation college student, Jim was recruited to run cross country for the Yellow Jackets.

The BHSU athletic department is where Jim said he first learned the results of hard work and dedication. That coupled with encouragement from BHSU faculty and staff drove him to success as a runner, as a student, and as a business person.

In the past 37 years, Jim has built a successful advertising business in California. Grateful for his educational experience, Jim made a commitment to his alma mater through on-going involvement in the annual Alumni Mile and establishment of scholarships to benefit student-athletes and business students.

"I came from a background where college was something that wasn't strongly considered," Jim said. "All my examples of going to college were from teachers and coaches. That is what was known to me, so I chose physical education based on the examples of others."

Jim says he learned many educational and training qualities at BHSU that he credits to his exponential success in the advertising field.

Jim is the general manager of Stott Outdoor Advertising in Chico, Calif. He and a group of partners bought Stott Outdoor Advertising 25 years ago. Prior to moving to California with his wife, Laura, Jim worked in radio advertising in Wyoming.

At the time, Stott Outdoor Advertising was a small company doing business in one California county. Today, Stott Outdoor Advertising operates in 25 California counties, as well as Oregon and Nevada primarily with billboard and transit advertising. Jim employs 28 people and manages the largest independent outdoor advertising company in the state of California.

IT ALL STARTED AT BHSU

As Jim reflects on his career, he finds the roots of his success started at B-H.

"It all started at Black Hills State. By working hard, you accomplish things. That philosophy continued to serve me well over the years," Jim said.

Jim was recruited to run cross country and track for the Yellow Jackets in 1974. Many of his college memories come from his coach Dave Little and fellow teammates.

"At that time we were emerging as being a regional power," Jim said.

Jim recalls winning the district title in 1977 – the first title in the University's history. He also notes the team's bid to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics National Cross Country meet in 1976. Jim was the top finisher for BHSU at the meet, coming in 103rd out of 900 runners. The Yellow Jackets also sealed the South Dakota Intercollegiate Sports Conference title while Jim was part of the team.

Although he accomplished much during his athletic career at BHSU, Jim said his work ethic came from the encouragement of Coach Little.

Jim recalls the Chadron State Cross Country Invitational in 1977 where BHSU placed runners in the top five, giving the Yellow Jackets a perfect score for the meet.

"That was the first time any of us had ever experienced this rare feat; it was something that was virtually unheard of in an invitational," Jim said.

The team expected a celebratory trip back to Spearfish, however Coach Little sent them on a run. The bus picked the team up nearly 10 miles north of Chadron.

"That was quite a statement that we were willing to work that hard to ensure future success," Jim said. "We never were to rely on being more talented than other teams to win. We were going to work harder, as well. That translates to business. When you undertake a project, you do whatever it takes to achieve the objective, as long as it is legal, moral and ethical."

Jim continued to run competitively for 30-plus years after leaving Black Hills State. He recently transitioned into cycling and rides 7,000-plus miles a year and competes in competitive bicycling events.

In addition to Coach Little and his Yellow Jacket teammates, Jim says many faculty and staff were instrumental to building a successful career.

"The faculty and staff were all supportive and encouraging of everything I did as a student," Jim said. "That encouragement kept me striving to do better, athletically and academically. I felt involved. I felt I was a part of something."

After earning his degree, Jim moved to Portland and managed a health and fitness club where he learned more about marketing. He pursued advertising positions and worked with direct mail and radio. He was a general manager of a radio station and worked as a sales manager before becoming involved in outdoor advertising.

"I enjoy business in general. It's always challenging, always obstacles to overcome," he said. "I found it suited my talents well."

Jim enjoys discovering businesses' challenges and how they can be overcome through marketing.

"It is always interesting to see how different businesses are using different mediums to achieve their objective," Jim said. "It's as if you are always in a large classroom."

MORAVEC GIVES BACK

Jim applied the lessons he learned at BHSU to his business pursuits.

"Through hard work you can accomplish great things. Applying that principal to business, good things started to happen for me," Jim said.

To ensure that students at BHSU will be able to achieve their goals, Jim and his wife have become dedicated supporters of the University.

They established the Jim and Laura Moravec Cross Country Scholarship Endowment Fund in 2012, and have been annual supporters for student scholarships.

Jim serves on the BHSU Foundation Board of Directors and most recently, the couple left a portion of their estate to the BHSU Foundation. The gift, expected to be nearly $3 million, will be divided in three ways.

One third will be awarded to the University athletic department to create the Jim and Laura Moravec Athletic Scholarship Fund, the Jim and Laura Moravec Athletic Operations Fund and other athletic scholarships. The athletic department portion also will be used for athletic travel or operations.

A third will be given to supplement the current Jim and Laura Moravec Cross Country Scholarship Fund.

Another third is earmarked for the School of Business, with an emphasis on entrepreneurial studies to create the Jim and Laura Moravec Entrepreneurial Scholarship Fund and supplement the current Jim and Laura Moravec Entrepreneurial Activities Fund.

Jim added he hopes his support of the Entrepreneurial Scholarship and Entrepreneurial Activities funds will inspire students.

"It's been gratifying to help the University reach its goals and objectives," he said.

MARK YOUR CALENDAR FOR THE 2016 SWARM DAYS, SATURDAY, OCT. 1

It was spurs and chaps and cowboy hats during the 2015 Black Hills State University Swarm Week celebration. Throughout the week, activities showcased the Yellow Jacket spirit under the theme Boot Scootin' Victory.

More than 60 floats made their way through downtown Spearfish Oct. 10, decked out in western décor and blasting country music favorites. BHSU supporter Carol Lundberg led the parade as the 2015 Swarm Days Parade Marshal.

Highlights of the parade included a float by the new BHSU Student Organization Talking Hands. The group used sign language to interpret popular country songs. Other community organizations showed their support of the Yellow Jackets, tossing out toy footballs and candy to kids.

Parade winners were announced during half-time of the Swarm Days football game. The winners were:

- Best Community Float: Kenadi Jean Weis Foundation
- Best Band: Spearfish Middle School
- First Place BHSU Student Organization: BHSU Talking Hands
- Second Place BHSU Student Organization: BHSU Honors Club
- Third Place BHSU Student Organization: BHSU Jacket Pack

BHSU alumni visited campus throughout the week, reminiscing of Swarm Days past, and several were honored during the annual Alumni Awards Luncheon and Yellow Jacket Hall of Fame Banquet. During the celebrations, they shared their memories of BHSU.

BHSU selected the 2015 Swarm Days King and Queen Jordan Hauger, applied health sciences major from Yankton, and Kristin Rath, secondary science education and physical science major from Canton. They were honored during a special coronation celebration before the annual burning of the "B-H."

Other Swarm Week events included the annual Hike to the H, a country bonfire, and decorating contest. The BHSU volleyball team held three games during Swarm Week, including a win against rival South Dakota School of Mines.

YOUNG CENTER GETS A FACELIFT

From left: The BHSU locker rooms were remodeled; the athletic weight room was relocated to the main floor of the Young Center; football suites were added to Lyle Hare Stadium; and new artwork in the Young Center showcases the Yellow Jacket spirit.

Athletic department revamps locker and weight rooms, adds football suites

The BHSU athletic department saw improvements in facilities over the course of the summer and fall months. Renovation of locker rooms, the athletic weight room and the addition of luxury boxes at Lyle Hare Stadium are among the improvements.

“Continuing to provide first class facilities at Black Hills State and within the Yellow Jackets Athletic Department is a priority that allows us to showcase to recruits what we have to offer above and beyond our quality of education, competitive sports programs and beautiful and friendly campus,” said

Jhett Albers, director of athletics.

The upgrades included new wooden lockers, matching stools, large television screens to watch game film and wall coverings featuring past athletes of each sport.

The other major change, and maybe the most visible to visitors on campus, was the addition of suites at Lyle Hare Stadium.

The luxury boxes offer a VIP experience while raising money for BHSU student-athlete scholarships. The suites offer amazing views of the football field, with access to watch the game from the comfort of an air conditioned/heated room or on the balcony overlooking the stadium.

New BHSU soccer coach leads first women’s soccer team

Climbing to the top of a mountain requires time and commitment. It also leaves bumps and bruises in the process. Approaching the mountain’s peak was a breeze to many coaches, but for BHSU head women’s soccer coach Rob Blake, the journey to the top was a long one that required sacrifice, hard work and heartbreak.

Blake left his native Grimsby, England, to attend Cardinal Stritch University in Milwaukee, Wis., where he graduated with a bachelor’s degree in business administration in 2008.

His passion for coaching didn’t begin until his tenure at Cardinal Stritch was in full swing.

Blake’s attempt at getting his foot in the door was a challenge that required coaching multiple teams concurrently while holding a full time job as a team leader at Target.

Blake

“Because I was behind the eight ball with my experience and connections, I decided I would do college coaching part time, high school coaching and club coaching all at the same time on top of a day job to try and give me that edge,” said Blake.

“I made a commitment to my wife to stay in Milwaukee for five years and do whatever I needed to do to get full time soccer,” said Blake.

He did just that when the opportunity to build a program from scratch at BHSU presented itself. Blake’s reaction to his dream coming true was nothing short of excitement.

“I got two phone calls from Jhett (Albers) while I was at work. I called him back and he offered me the job. I was jumping for joy as soon as I got home.”

Blake and the Black Hills State women’s soccer team will embark on their inaugural season in the fall of 2016.

BHSU SOARS TO THE TOP DURING EMOTIONAL SEASON

The BHSU men's cross country team had its best season since moving to the NCAA and arguably, one of its best seasons in recent history. What is not arguable was the emotion the Yellow Jackets ran with throughout the season.

The Yellow Jackets opened the season winning their first four meets, including the prestigious Roy Griak Invitational, defeating two top-10 teams. Alec Baldwin, the individual winner of the Griak Invite, won two Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference Runner of the Week honors up to that point.

After the victory at Griak, the squad earned its first-ever NCAA National Ranking from the United States Track & Field and Cross Country Coaches Association, coming in at No. 18.

For many programs, that would have been enough to make it a great season. However, for the Yellow Jackets, the season began emotionally after having lost senior Gage McSpadden.

A SEASON DEDICATED TO GAGE

McSpadden had high hopes for Black Hills State, with a goal of the team making the NCAA National Championship during his senior season. However, McSpadden would not get to experience the magical run as he was tragically killed by a lightning strike in July while disc golfing in Spearfish Park.

The entire season was dedicated in Gage's honor, including the Yellow Jacket Invitational that the Green and Gold won over the University of Mary. Head coach Scott Walkinshaw announced that the race would become the Gage McSpadden Memorial Invitational.

With McSpadden in the Yellow Jackets' hearts, the Green and Gold ran through the season with the ultimate goal in mind. At the RMAC Championship with the Yellow Jackets owning a school-best No. 16 national ranking, the team placed sixth overall, facing an uphill battle to make the national meet.

Running what could be considered the race of a lifetime, the Yellow Jackets made McSpadden's goal come true finishing sixth in the South Central Regional meet.

Black Hills State entered the national meet with a No. 22 national ranking. It was Walkinshaw's goal to finish higher than its national ranking, beat one of the five teams who beat them at the South Central Regional and beat their highest national ranking throughout the season, which was No. 16.

ACHIEVING GOALS

The Yellow Jackets had a surge over the final 5,000 meters from 19th position to the actual finish of 14th, achieving those three goals, plus an individual goal of Baldwin earning All-American status. Baldwin was a major part of the surge, moving from 34th place at the halfway point, to 21st at 6,870 meters before his final finishing position of ninth.

In all, the top-four finishers for the Yellow Jackets picked up a combined 63 places over the final two miles of the race as Kendall Murie nearly earned All-American honors in 43rd position, followed by Aaron Schone and Jonah Theisen in 132nd and 133rd, respectively. Isaac Iverson, the final point-scoring runner for BHSU placed 157th in the 246-runner field in Joplin, Mo.

BHSU had many chances to call it a good season but didn't give up after losing a teammate and friend. Instead, they ran a great season, one that will go down in history, not only for what they accomplished on the course but for what they did for the family of McSpadden and Black Hills State.

CREATING A LEGACY

Three generations honored as Legacy Family

In February BHSU honored retired teacher Anna Jean (Hutchens) McKee of Sturgis and 45 members of her family as the 2016 BHSU Legacy Family.

This year's Legacy Family includes three generations of students who attended, graduated, or are currently attending BHSU, including all four children of Jean and Robert McKee. Their youngest daughter, Joyce (McKee) Schieffer, '82, said being part of the 2016 BHSU Legacy Family is an honor.

"Attending BHSU provided so many members of our family an opportunity to better our lives," said Schieffer. "We are a family of teachers. Education is very important in our lives."

Joyce's mother, Jean McKee, first attended BHSU, then called Black Hills Teachers College. Less than one year after enrolling at BH, Jean began teaching in rural schools in the town of Wood.

Jean later returned to BHSU to complete her education degree in 1973 and retired from teaching in the Meade County School District.

She attended BHSU at the same time as her two sons, Robert McKee, '71 and Kenneth McKee, '72.

"I went to BHSU because my family went there but also because of the University's reputation in preparing teachers," said Schieffer. "I had the opportunity to have some of the same instructors as my mother and brother."

The BHSU Legacy Family award was first bestowed in 2008 to honor family members that have attended, graduated or are currently attending BHSU. To nominate a family, contact Tom Wheaton, director of alumni relations at BHSU, at 605-642-6385 or Tom.Wheaton@BHSU.edu.

Black Hills State University honored Anna Jean (Hutchens) McKee and her family as the 2016 Legacy Family of the Year. The McKee Family includes three generations and 46 BHSU alumni.

BHSU sees record-breaking year for donations

For the fifth consecutive year, BHSU reported a record-breaking fundraising year.

BHSU University Advancement raised $10,207,920 by 2,516 donors in 2015, more than double the amount raised just two years ago.

There were 797 first-time donors in 2015, a huge achievement for the University, said Steve Meeker, vice president for University Advancement.

Meeker noted that the largest cash gift awarded to the University in 2015 was $1 million. A $3 million donation was given as an estate gift to the University in 2015, as well, to enhance student-athlete scholarships and business students at BHSU.

Longtime BHSU supporters Joe and Elaine Floyd donated $1 million to the University in 2015.

"What we really want to see is for everyone to know how important it is for our South Dakota children to receive a good education right here in our own state," said Joe Floyd. "Because they will stay here, raise a family, and become our next generation of leaders."

A majority of the donations will be used toward student scholarships, Meeker said, offering students increased opportunities to receive a high-quality education at BHSU and utilize the new educational facilities on campus.

About 10 years ago, Meeker said an increased effort was made to enhance fundraising goals. New fundraising events were added to the calendar, and others were revamped.

The annual 1883 Dinner was modified to become not only an event to recognize University donors, but to raise additional money for student scholarships.

University Advancement also increased the number of events for alumni and friends to donate to the University. BHSU hosts seven golf tournaments each year, the BHSU Jacket Ride, Kevin Whirlwind Memorial Run and others.

As a BHSU alum, Meeker said he looks forward to awarding more student scholarships and continuing this record-breaking success into the future.

BHSU PROFESSOR NAMED BHSU DIFFERENCE MAKER

Black Hills State University professor Dr. James Hess was awarded the 2014 Difference Maker at the 1883 Gala in August 2015.

The 1883 Gala honored Hess, along with other BHSU contributors that donated more than $1,883 in a calendar year or more than $50,000 in a lifetime. The Gala also raised funds for BHSU scholarships.

The Difference Maker Award is presented to the University's top donor for the previous calendar year. Hess, a professor in psychology and chair of the School of Behavioral Sciences at BHSU, pledged a $1 million gift to the University to establish the Make a Difference Initiative. Through the Make a Difference Initiative, in exchange for scholarship funds, students are challenged to develop a sustainable community project that will make a difference in the lives of others.

"Part of the reason I went into teaching is to make a difference in people's lives," Hess said. "To have the University give me this honor, verifies I made the right choice to become a professor and make an impact on the lives of college students."

Hess has taught psychology at BHSU for 33 years. His $1 million donation is equivalent to the salary he made during his first 19 years of teaching at the University.

Steve Meeker, vice president of University Advancement, said the Gala was a huge success, providing the opportunity to honor and thank the University's dedicated donors, while also raising additional money for BHSU scholarships. The Gala raised nearly $16,000 for scholarships with 170 people in attendance.

BHSU student launches successful mentoring program through Make A Difference Initiative

Shenae LaCroix is making quite the difference at BHSU and in Spearfish with a new mentoring program.

The BHSU exercise science major from Newcastle, Wyo., was awarded the first-ever Make a Difference Initiative, a scholarship program that along with scholarship funds, encourage students to give back to the community.

LaCroix started YJ (Yellow Jacket) Friends, a mentoring program that matches BHSU student volunteers, or mentors, with a non-college person with special needs. The program allows community members with special needs an opportunity to have a college experience they might not otherwise get.

Currently, 14 mentors participate in YJ Friends. LaCroix expects that number to grow over the next year and already has students on a waiting list for the program.

REMEMBER YOUR ROOTS: DONATE A TREE TO BHSU!

Black Hills State University invites alumni and friends to donate a tree for campus beautification. More than 230 campus trees were lost in fall 2013 due to the devastation from Storm Atlas. In 2014 students in biology and geographic information systems (GIS) classes at BHSU collaborated to identify each campus tree's species and location. BHSU Facilities Services used the information collected by the students to create a Campus Tree Inventory available for view in Google Maps. Throughout the next year, the map will be updated to honor those who have donated a campus tree in memory of a loved one.

The first target area for the new grove of donated trees will be along St. Joe Street near the Donald E. Young Center. If a certain tree species or another campus location is desired, BHSU Facilities Services will work with individuals and families to find the perfect tree type and location. Trees can be donated in memory, honor, or in celebration of loved ones, friends, and life events such as graduation, births, marriages, or anniversaries. The BHSU Foundation requests $500 per tree. To donate a tree, contact University Advancement at 605-642-6385.
