Core Values/Guiding Principles

Spirit of Public Service

We believe that higher education exists for the betterment of society and that participating in this noble enterprise is a privilege.

Respect, Diversity, Community, Collaboration

As members of a vibrant learning community, we strive to create a culture of mutual respect, tolerance for diversity, and collaboration among faculty, students and administrators.

Responsibility, Engagement

As educators we strive to inspire engaged learning in our students, instilling individual accountability while guiding them in the development of professional competence. This process is solidified, in part, through small class size and personal attention.

High Expectations, Concern for Students

As a faculty we are committed to excellence in teaching, concern for our students, and high expectations in scholarship for ourselves and our students.

Ethical Awareness, Sustainability

We believe that a well-rounded business education acknowledges commercial enterprise as a source of innovation and wealth creation that also requires a nuanced understanding of business ethics and sustainable business practices.

Continuous Improvement, Relevance, Critical Skills

To ensure that our students receive the best education that we can render, we engage in a continuous search to improve our methods, processes, technologies and instructional content.

Research, Service

We recognize that the body of knowledge in every field is constantly evolving, and we embrace our responsibility to contribute to our disciplines through research and service in a way that informs our teaching.
